DR. SMEETA SARDESAI
More than just a profession
MISSION STATEMENT

Good Samaritan Hospital is a progressive, tertiary, nonprofit hospital. Our Mission is to provide accessible, quality, cost-effective and compassionate healthcare services that meet the needs of our patients and their families, the community and physicians.

Good Samaritan Hospital’s centers of excellence focus on advancing the science of medicine and providing outstanding healthcare.

We will manage our resources responsibly, maintaining the financial viability necessary for success.

On the cover: Dr. Sardesai is Medical Director of Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU)
This has been an extraordinary year for Good Samaritan Hospital and we are grateful for the faith our foundation partners, corporate supporters and individual donors have placed in this hospital. We are honored to have received very generous contributions from the Lee and Herman Ostrow Family Foundation for our Campaign for Cardiology and from the general contracting firm of Millie and Severson to support our 10th Golf Classic.

Our Campaign for Cardiology has set a goal of raising $7 million for the completion of two electrophysiology labs (EP). The EP labs provide our cardiologists with the most advanced technology to treat the electrical anomalies of the heart and they are part of a larger project that includes our heart catheterization labs (cath lab) and hybrid rooms.

We are also pleased to recognize Dr. Smeeta Sardesai's outstanding leadership and extraordinary contribution to patient care. As the Medical Director of our Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU), she has helped to ensure that Good Samaritan Hospital’s success rate in the care of premature babies remains 25% higher than the California state average. Dr. Sardesai is an essential member of our Mother and Baby Care Campaign and is dedicated to helping us raise the funding to secure the most cutting-edge medical equipment available for our NICU.

We would also like to thank our physicians, nurses and other medical staff for providing all of our patients with the highest quality medical care. Finally, we would like to take this opportunity to thank all of our donors for supporting our Campaign for Cardiology, Mother and Baby Care Campaign, and all of the projects at Good Samaritan Hospital.

Very truly yours,

Charles T. Munger
Chairman of the Board of Trustees

Andrew B. Leeka
President and Chief Executive Officer
Dr. Smeeta Sardesai was born to be a baby doctor.

More than Just a Profession

As a little girl in India, Smeeta knew most of the expectant mothers in her little village and when they were due to deliver their babies. There were few hospitals available to the villagers and most of the pregnant women delivered their babies at home with a midwife. Smeeta would always be there for the delivery and to hold the new baby. She was so small herself that to ensure that she did not drop the baby, she would always sit on the floor as she held them. “I loved the newborn babies and would hold them for hours.”

Today, Dr. Sardesai is Medical Director of Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) at Good Samaritan Hospital’s Davajan-Cabal Center for Perinatal Medicine and one of the top neonatologists in Los Angeles. She has over twenty years of experience treating the city’s most critically ill infants. For Dr. Sardesai, her work as a neonatologist isn’t just a profession – it is a calling. “To be present for this new life – it is so humbling,” she explained.
Dr. Sardesai works especially hard to ensure that parents of the babies in the NICU have full knowledge and understanding of their baby’s condition. She works with many new parents who have struggled for years to have a baby only to have the baby come weeks or even months premature. These very early babies suffer serious and potentially life-threatening complications such as under-developed lungs, feeding disorders, and pulmonary hypertension. Dr. Sardesai cared for one little boy that was born at 25 weeks and weighed just one pound. His lungs were seriously compromised and he had to be put on a high-frequency ventilator for a significant period of time. His recovery was slow and complicated, but after three months in the NICU he was able to go home with his parents. Today that little boy is doing “just great.” When a very sick baby can recover and go home healthy – “that is what makes it all worthwhile.”

As an Associate Professor of Pediatrics at Keck School of Medicine at the University of Southern California, Dr. Sardesai is training the neonatologists and pediatricians of tomorrow. Her skill as a neonatologist and a professor is reflected in the glowing reviews by her interns. “Dr. Sardesai is an excellent attending. Her style of teaching is excellent for the field of medicine...I hope one day to be able to teach residents and students the way she does.”

Dr. Sardesai’s medical expertise extends far beyond the Los Angeles area through her volunteer work with the Global Medical Brigade and the Children’s Medical Care Foundation, as well as her decades of research in neonatal medicine. The Global Medical Brigade provides medical care to communities that have limited access to essential healthcare. Dr. Sardesai has traveled with her students from the Keck School of Medicine to Mexico, Honduras, and Haiti to provide desperately needed medical care to children and infants suffering from serious medical conditions. And as a leading researcher in the prevention of acute and chronic lung injury, pulmonary hypertension, and feeding and nutrition problems in premature infants, her research informs pediatricians all over the country. Dr. Sardesai and her colleagues’ research on the effects of dexamethasone (steroids) on chronic lung disease in very low birth weight babies informed the entire medical community about the significant improvement in respiratory outcomes when these therapies are applied.

As a key member of Good Samaritan Hospital’s Mother and Baby Care Campaign, Dr. Sardesai works to secure the most cutting-edge medical equipment available.
For the Sardesai family, medicine is a family affair. Her one son is a doctor, another son is a biomedical engineer who makes medical devices, and her daughter is in medical school. And the glue that holds it all together is her husband, Raj Sardesai. His constant support has given Dr. Sardesai the ability to have it all—a beautiful family and an exemplary medical career.

Over the last 25 years, Good Samaritan Hospital has delivered more than 100,000 babies. We have a success rate in the care of premature babies that is 25% higher than the California state average and as the Medical Director of Neonatal Intensive Care Unit, Dr. Sardesai is a huge part of that success. She oversees the day-to-day functioning of the NICU to ensure that critically ill babies get the highest quality care. Each additional day that we can extend the life of a critically ill infant increases the odds that the baby will survive and thrive. “When it comes to premature babies, every day counts; it’s not a count down, it’s a count up,” she explains.

As a key member of Good Samaritan Hospital’s Mother and Baby Care Campaign, Dr. Sardesai works to secure the most cutting-edge medical equipment available. Our Mother and Baby Care Campaign is working very hard to raise $3.3 million to purchase new state-of-the-art maternal EKG monitors, fetal monitors, NICU monitors, and other equipment for the Davajan-Cabal Center for Perinatal Medicine. In 2013, we delivered 4,000 babies and about 400 of those babies were admitted to the NICU. This new equipment will allow Good Samaritan Hospital’s outstanding medical team to continue to lead the way in the care of premature and critically ill infants.

Try something new! For most of us, change is hard; it takes preparation, commitment and support. Because of your generous philanthropic support, Good Samaritan Hospital’s Community Health Education department facilitates people’s ability to make healthy lifestyle changes. Through interactive teaching methods, our Health Education Specialists, Registered Dietitians, and Registered Nurses help participants gain new knowledge and skills that improve their health.

Maternal and Child Health
Our perinatal classes in English, Spanish and Korean provide new moms with the skills to have a healthy pregnancy and learn how to feed and care for their babies. Health Education classes such as Breastfeeding and Infant Nutrition, Baby Care, Diabetes During Pregnancy, and Healthy Habits for New Moms have provided important perinatal education for over 760 parents.

When asked about the first weeks at home with their new infant, one dad commented, “The baby behaved just like you said. We took turns keeping our son skin to skin, slept when he slept and fed him as soon as we saw the hunger signs...Yeah, it was challenging, but worth it.”
Philanthropy is a Powerful Partner in the Prevention and Management of Chronic Disease

Cardiovascular disease is the number one cause of death in Los Angeles. This year, through grants, and donations from individuals and corporations, GSH has made a positive impact on 260 people who participated in Heart H.E.L.P. (Healthy Eating and Lifestyle Programs). Community members learned to reduce risk factors such as high blood pressure, high cholesterol, smoking, obesity, sedentary lifestyle, and poor eating habits. They also learned to recognize the signs and symptoms of a heart attack or stroke and take life saving action.

For example, six months after attending classes, a participant’s father had a sudden, severe headache. Fortunately, the participant recognized this as a potential stroke and called 911. Her father received timely medical attention and made a full recovery.

Living With Diabetes

Diabetes education classes focus on diabetes management and the prevention of complications with the M’s-- Meals, Movement (exercise) Monitoring, Medicine, Medical support and Mental health. There is another “M” that makes all the others possible: Money. Once again, because of your generous support, more than 730 community members have gained new knowledge and skill to prevent or manage diabetes.

One participant commented, “This stuff really works! These pants used to be so tight; now I need a belt to hold them up!” Another grateful participant said, “My doctor kept pestering… encouraging me to take these classes. And I’m so glad he did.”

Because of your generous philanthropic support, Good Samaritan Hospital’s Community Health Education department facilitates people’s ability to make healthy lifestyle changes.

Whether it is a lactating mom, a stroke survivor, or a person who makes changes to manage diabetes, we can all support their effort and share in their success. Your investment in the Community Health Education programs at Good Samaritan Hospital makes these, and future, successes possible.

To learn more about the Community Health Education programs and the positive impact that your partnership is having, please email HealthEd@GoodSam.org or call 213-977-2150. We look forward to talking with you.
A Corporate Good Citizen

In his book, Poor Charlie’s Almanack, Charles T. Munger, the Chairman of Good Samaritan Hospital’s Board of Trustees, writes, “I feel that those of us who have been very fortunate have a duty to give back.”

This issue of Good News is pleased to honor the firm of Millie and Severson for its commitment to giving back. Millie and Severson is not only the contractor entrusted with the construction of the new Good Samaritan Medical Pavilion – dedication is set for Fall, 2015 – but it also lives out its commitment to being a good corporate citizen by being a donor to the hospital.

“We are committed to providing each of our partners with assistance in their philanthropic endeavors. We believe in giving back to the organizations we serve in some capacity as befits the organization and its needs, and we welcome and are honored to be part of such opportunities,” says John Grossman, Senior Vice President.

Millie and Severson is not only the contractor entrusted with the construction of the new Good Samaritan Medical Pavilion – dedication is set for Fall, 2015 – but it also lives out its commitment to being a good corporate citizen by being a donor to the hospital.

Good Samaritan Hospital’s new Medical Pavilion — being built by Millie and Severson — is currently rising along Wilshire Boulevard just west of the hospital’s main entrance.
Millie and Severson backs up those words with action. The company has been a donor to Good Samaritan each year since 2012, and in 2014 the firm became a major sponsor of the Good Samaritan Golf Classic.

With appropriate pride, Grossman describes a culture of philanthropy at his company. “Not only do we make gifts as a corporation, but many of our owner-employees act individually with their own time, effort or financial contributions to support their personal charities of choice.”

Founded in 1945, Millie and Severson takes pride in being a local company – corporate headquarters are in Los Alamitos – that builds local projects. “We build local projects – medical office buildings, hospitals, schools and universities, churches, parks and more – that enhance Southern California, where our owner-employees not only work but live,” says Grossman.

Good Samaritan Hospital’s new Medical Pavilion – being built by Millie and Severson – is currently rising along Wilshire Boulevard just west of the hospital’s main entrance. The state-of-the-art facility will be home to an Ambulatory Surgery Center, radiation oncology and physician offices. It will also feature a new and highly-anticipated café.

When asked to comment on what stands out about the new Medical Pavilion, Grossman made an interesting observation. “It is not one thing. The building itself will be wonderful, but what really stands out is the process – a collection of incredible people (He holds Mr. Munger in the highest esteem!), with great intellectual capital, working collaboratively to accomplish something that will be of great value to Good Samaritan Hospital and the many communities it serves.”
Dr. Ostrow had been treated for atrial fibrillation – the symptoms are irregular heartbeat, light-headedness, palpitations, chest pain and decreased activity – with only marginal success at another prominent Los Angeles hospital for many years. Well over 70-years-of-age, his physicians finally told him that there was nothing more they could do for him.

“That is when he heard about Dr. Cannom,” explains Herman’s daughter, Jeanette Matye. Dr. David S. Cannom, Director of the Heart & Vascular Center, successfully ablated her father. “The results were immediate and amazing,” she says. “For the last eleven years of his life – he died at age 88 – he had no symptoms of atrial fibrillation at all.”

In gratitude for the excellent and life-changing care he received from Good Samaritan Cardiologists, and with the encouragement of his fiancée, Mrs. Gloria Billingsley, Dr. Ostrow made a pledge of $1,000,000 from The Lee and Herman Ostrow Family Foundation. When he died prior to the fulfillment of the pledge, Jeanette, the President of the Foundation, made sure that the gift was completed in its entirety.
Daughter and grandson, Jeanette and Adam Matye stand proudly by a portrait of Dr. Herman Ostrow.
The generosity he displayed as a grateful patient was nothing new for Herman Ostrow. In a 2009 visit to the Griffith Observatory he observed the donor wall and was prompted to give consideration as to how large private gifts could decisively impact worthwhile organizations. Just a year later, in January 2010, he gave a donation that prompted USC to name its dental school in his honor: The Herman Ostrow School of Dentistry.

On the occasion of the ceremony marking that gift, Dr. Ostrow said, “This is the best thing I have ever done; and it is the right thing to do!”

A lifelong resident of Southern California, Herman was born in East Los Angeles. He graduated from the University of Southern California School of Dentistry in 1945 and served as a dentist in the U.S. Army during the Korean War.

Though he continued the practice of dentistry for 17 years, Dr. Ostrow found that his greatest interest was in the real estate and construction business. In addition, he developed an abiding interest in collecting and cultivating rare fruit trees.

Today, The Lee and Herman Ostrow Family Foundation continues the philanthropic work of its founder, especially supporting causes within the Jewish community. Good Samaritan Hospital is thankful for our relationship with this remarkable man – along with his daughter and grandson, Jeanette and Adam Matye – and is pleased to honor him in this edition of Good News.

Dr. David Cannom and the state-of-the-art equipment of two new electrophysiology laboratories (EP labs) helped by the new Campaign for Cardiology – beginning in 2014 – will raise $7 million for the construction.

A planned gift is an easy way to accomplish that and make a difference in the lives of many. It is the mission of Good Samaritan Hospital to provide accessible, cost-effective and compassionate healthcare services of the highest quality. Planned gifts made today stress the importance of fulfilling the mission and financial needs of the future, while also offering tax benefits for you. We very much appreciate and depend upon outright contributions for immediate use, but by joining The Legacy Society at Good Samaritan Hospital you will ensure quality healthcare that will have an impact for many generations to come. We honor those special friends who have joined us in planning for the future through inclusion in their estate plans.

There are many ways you can join The Legacy Society. Make a provision in your estate plans by considering assigning an insurance policy or by funding a charitable gift annuity. Many of our donors like the immediate income tax deduction and the security of knowing they will always have a reliable source of income. A bequest is a simple and effective method to leave a legacy after your lifetime. You could give Good Samaritan Hospital a specific asset, dollar amount, or you could leave us a percentage of the remainder of your estate, after providing for your family members. Naming Good Samaritan Hospital as the beneficiary of your retirement plans can result in tremendous income to Good Samaritan Hospital and estate tax savings for your estate.

Good Samaritan Hospital is here for you - providing the highest quality of emergency room services, heart and vascular care, and perinatal and neonatal intensive care in the Los Angeles area. We are honored to accept planned gifts that offer general support or provide for a specific area that is close to your heart.

Please contact Andrea Morseburg if you have any questions regarding a planned gift and she will be glad to provide more information about your options.
