Dear friends of Good Samaritan Hospital,

Since our last issue of Good News, we have continued to make significant enhancements to the hospital in service of our guiding mission, A Tradition of Caring.

In the pages that follow, you will meet the people who are carrying the torch of this tradition in their day-to-day lives. We feature Good Sam trustee Mimi Grant and her husband Bob Kelley, who both dedicate their time, talents and financial support to the causes they believe in—the Clinical Pastoral Education program, and the Heart and Vascular Center.

We are also proud to feature Dr. Arthur Klein and Mrs. Francie Klein. Dr. Klein is an anesthesiologist who has been with the hospital for 32 years. The Kleins’ support, through Partners in Health—the hospital’s physician giving society—and the Auxiliary, ensures the hospital’s greatest needs can be met.

We highlight Dr. Allison Hill, a gynecologist with Spectrum Women’s Healthcare, a private provider of obstetrics and gynecology services. As Good Sam’s new Chief of Staff, Dr. Hill is poised to enhance the relationship between our medical staff and administration.

We are also proud to spotlight two longtime employees, Rose Wong and Kathy Yoshimura, who have been supporting Good Company—Good Sam’s employee giving program for 20 years. Rose and Kathy were recently recognized at the Good Company Employee awards reception, and received the Chairman’s Award for their significant contributions to the hospital.

We are deeply grateful to our community of supporters both inside and outside of the hospital. It is our joy to shine a light on the many people who are making a difference and to showcase the impact of their support to Good Samaritan Hospital.

Very truly yours,

Charles T. Munger
Chairman of the Board of Trustees

Andrew B. Leeka
President and Chief Executive Officer
Dr. Arthur Klein and Mrs. Francie Klein are deeply invested in the success of Good Samaritan Hospital. Dr. Klein, an anesthesiologist with Samaritan Anesthesia Medical Group, has been with the hospital for 32 years. His wife, Francie, is a former social worker who volunteers with the Good Samaritan Hospital Auxiliary. Together, the Kleins have not just given their time and talents to the hospital, but—through Partners in Health—they have also given consistent financial support earmarked for the hospital’s most critical needs.
Dr. Klein grew up in Queens, New York. He earned his M.D. from the University of Buffalo and his B.A. from the University of Pennsylvania. He spent two years in the United States Air Force, stationed in Canada as a base psychiatrist. “While in the Air Force, I spent a lot of time with other doctors who were really enthusiastic about the potential of medicine to do good,” said Dr. Klein. “It was eye opening for me and solidified my commitment to the field.”

Dr. Klein went on to complete a residency at Los Angeles County + USC Medical Center, later joined St. Vincent’s and then found his home at Good Samaritan Hospital. Nearly as quickly as he joined the hospital, he began contributing to Partners in Health, Good Samaritan’s physician giving society.

“I give to Partners in Health because we all owe our livelihood to Good Sam Hospital and we should try to benefit them as much as we can,” said Dr. Klein. “We have an outstanding group of physicians at the hospital and I’m proud to work alongside them.” Dr. Klein has given to this meaningful cause for the past 31 years.

Francie Klein was born and raised in Berkeley, California. She attended UCLA where she earned a B.A. in Spanish. Leveraging her fluency in Spanish, Portuguese and Italian, she served as a social worker for the County of Los Angeles for seven years.

When Dr. Klein joined the hospital as an anesthesiologist, Mrs. Klein joined Good Samaritan’s Auxiliary. She is Past President and now serves as Second Vice President.

“My father was an orthopedic surgeon and my mother joined the auxiliary of his hospital. You can say I come from a tradition of giving back in this way,” she said.

Led by dedicated members since 1951, Good Samaritan Hospital’s Auxiliary has supported the growth and development of the hospital through fundraising events and appeals, volunteer work and the operation of the gift shop. Through the Auxiliary, Mrs. Klein volunteers at the gift shop and leads the creation of the yearly Valentine’s Day appeal.

The Valentine’s Day appeal began in the late 1990s, and has raised over $500,000 to support hospital programs, services and state-of-the-art medical equipment.
Last year through the appeal, the Auxiliary raised a total of $36,000 in which $20,000 was directed towards incubators for the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit, $10,000 to support the Junior Volunteer Scholarship Program and $6,000 to the Child Care Center for playground equipment and furniture for the toddler and pre-school rooms. Additionally, Mrs. Klein led the re-landscaping of the front of the hospital—a project that benefitted from her green thumb and love of botany.

“The Auxiliary is a meaningful part of the Good Sam family because it provides funding for the hospital’s critical needs, as well as for overall improvements that impact not just patients, but also the community,” said Mrs. Klein.

Dr. and Mrs. Klein met in Los Angeles when Francie was a waitress at a delicatessen in Westwood. “Art stood out from the rest of my customers,” Mrs. Klein recalled. Married for 48 years, the Kleins have two sons and five grandchildren.
Partners In Health

Partners In Health (PIH) is Good Samaritan Hospital’s physician donor group. Since its inception, over 150 physicians have contributed nearly $3.5M to Good Sam by supporting hospital programs, services and departments with annual gifts of $1,000 or more. The continued generosity of our medical staff helps us impact the lives of patients and families who come to Good Sam for lifesaving care.

To join Partners in Health, please contact Kim Cabral, Annual Giving Manager, Fund Development, (213) 977-2935 or kcabral@goodsam.org.

“The Auxiliary is a meaningful part of the Good Sam family because it provides funding for the hospital’s critical needs...”
In 1990, a serendipitous meeting with Reverend David Walker, formerly Episcopal Chaplain of Good Samaritan Hospital, would change the course of Mimi Grant’s life. At the time, Grant was on a quest for a spiritual home. This chance encounter inspired a deep connection to Good Samaritan Hospital—its leadership and mission—and solidified her spiritual home and calling. Encouraged to become involved with the Episcopal Church, she ran for Diocesan representative of the Good Samaritan Board of Trustees and secured her place.

For the past 15 years, Grant has served on the Good Samaritan Hospital Board of Trustees and represents the giving spirit of Sister Mary Wood, who founded Good Samaritan in 1885.

In addition to donating her time and talents as trustee, Grant dedicates financial support to the hospital’s Clinical Pastoral Education program (CPE), which trains interns from a broad spectrum of cultures and faith traditions on how to be chaplains. Currently, the hospital has five interns-in-training.

“I strongly believe in the Clinical Pastoral Education program, not just for the tremendous value it provides to Good Sam’s patients who may be alone in their suffering and fear, but also for the very real value it brings into the far-reaching communities of its intern graduates,” said Grant. “I truly believe that while Good Sam’s physicians and clinical staff are the ‘heart’ of the hospital, the chaplains and CPE students are its ‘soul.’”

Reverend Michael S. Bell, an Episcopal priest and director of the Department of Pastoral Care, Board of Trustee Mimi Grant, and colleagues the Reverend Jana Milhon-Martin, an Episcopal priest who serves as the program’s Supervisor-in-Training for Clinical Pastoral Education, and Sister Yolanda Vega, a Roman Catholic Sister of Social Service.
“I am grateful to Ms. Grant for her support of the Clinical Pastoral Education program, which provides an integral service to our hospital patients,” said Reverend Bell. “With additional, sustained funding, we hope to have chaplains available on-call 24/7 to meet with hospital patients, family, and staff at any time of need.”

Bob Kelley, Grant’s husband, has his own Good Sam story. Rather than a spiritual quest, it was a health quest that led him to the hospital. Suffering from angina and not feeling confident in the care provided by his local cardiologist, Kelley heeded the recommendation of Good Samaritan Hospital CEO Andy Leeka and sought care with Dr. David Cannom instead. With care from Dr. Cannom, Director of Cardiology at Good Samaritan Hospital, and additional support from the Heart and Vascular Center, including Dr. Anil Bhandari, cardiologist and Director of the Electrophysiology laboratory, and Dr. Christina Economides, cardiologist, Kelley is on the mend.

“I truly believe that while Good Sam’s physicians and clinical staff are the ‘heart’ of the hospital, the chaplains and CPE students are its ‘soul.’”
Good Samaritan Hospital’s Heart & Vascular Center has gained a worldwide reputation not only for outstanding care but also for innovative research and the development of breakthrough procedures. Kelley is representative of the center’s life-enhancing care and has dedicated financial support to further its impact on patients like him.

“Good Samaritan Hospital matters because of the high quality healthcare services it provides to me and also delivers to the downtown LA community. I’m looking forward to being a continuing contributor to Good Samaritan Hospital’s Heart and Vascular Center,” said Kelley.

Together, Kelley and Grant lead Adaptive Business Leaders Organization (ABL), a membership organization for executives and leaderships of healthcare and technology companies. Grant serves as president and facilitator of ABL’s six Healthcare Executives Round Tables, and Kelley serves as CEO and facilitator of ABL’s three monthly Tech Peer Mentoring CEO Round Tables. Leveraging their experiences in these industries, Grant and Kelley provide members with the insights, information, and connections they need to grow successful companies in today’s uncertain economy. Their unique insights into the healthcare industry make their endorsement and support of Good Samaritan Hospital all the more meaningful.

“Since the day Sister Mary opened its doors, Good Sam has been an excellent steward of all its resources,” said Grant. “Given that many of Good Sam’s neighbors and patients are either under or uninsured, the hospital has developed a culture of conservation to ensure its resources can help those who need it most.”

IF YOU WISH TO MAKE A GIFT to the Department of Pastoral Care or to the Heart and Vascular Center to enable us to sustain the services and programs needed to our hospital community, please contact: Brian W. Thorne, Vice President, Fund Development, (213) 482-2774, bthorne@goodsam.org
While Dr. Allison Hill has been a staple at Good Samaritan Hospital since 1999, she began a new role as Chief of Staff this past January with previous roles as Chairman of the Department of OBGYN and Vice Chief of Staff. Dr. Hill is a gynecologist with Spectrum Women’s Healthcare, a private provider of obstetrics and gynecology services that works exclusively out of Good Samaritan Hospital.

Raised in Springfield, Illinois, Dr. Hill earned a B.S. in biology from the University of Notre Dame and M.D. from Loyola University in Chicago. She completed her residency in OB/GYN at Los Angeles County—USC School of Medicine and joined Spectrum Women’s Healthcare in Los Angeles, California thereafter.

“In partnership with Good Samaritan Hospital, Spectrum Women’s Healthcare has been a leader in serving the Los Angeles community, delivering thousands of babies at Good Sam,” said Dr. Hill.

“What’s so great is that when you’ve had your baby at a hospital, that becomes your hospital whenever you have a medical need. It’s a joy to serve this community for something as important as the birth of their children and then to be their health and medical support system for the rest of their lives.”

Dr. Hill personally sees over a 25 patients a day, at least half of whom are new patients of the hospital and new residents to thriving Los Angeles communities, including downtown, Silver Lake and Los Feliz.

“It’s not only Good Sam’s medical practices and specialties that are a draw to local communities, but also its facilities. I’m in the new office building and patients think it’s beautiful and tell me it looks like an office in Beverly Hills,” said Dr. Hill.

As Chief of Staff, Dr. Hill’s predominant responsibility is to bridge the needs of the hospital’s medical staff with those of the hospital administration and Board of Trustees. In just three months, she has led several important transitions and projects, including the transition to a new emergency room department with a group of doctors from USC. “As Chief of Staff, I look forward to serving the hospital in a new capacity, ensuring that we continue to move the hospital in a direction that best serves our patients and that makes our medical staff feel listened to and happy to be here.”

Dr. Hill is board-certified and a Fellow of the American College of OB/GYN. She has two children, Luke, 15, and Kate, 13.
 Thanks to the generous support of Mr. Charles T. Munger, Vice Chairman of Berkshire Hathaway and Chairman of the Board for Good Samaritan Hospital for 31 years, the hospital’s emergency center will undergo a vital expansion. A portion of Mr. Munger’s $21 million gift will expand the emergency room waiting area, increase the size of the nurses’ station, include new treatment and trauma rooms, and double the number of patient beds from 12 to 24.

“We are so grateful for the leadership Mr. Munger demonstrates daily. This gift is a marvelous acknowledgement of his commitment to our patients, physicians, staff, volunteers, and to the Good Samaritan Hospital community in Los Angeles,” said Andrew B. Leeka, President/CEO of Good Samaritan Hospital.

Made possible by Mr. Munger, the emergency center expansion will ensure that Good Samaritan Hospital remains at the forefront of providing quality medical and healthcare services to a rapidly growing downtown and the Los Angeles community.
Of his generosity, Mr. Munger says, “Those of us who have been very fortunate have a duty to give back.”

Mr. Munger has been a business partner of Warren Buffett since the two met at a dinner party in 1959. He focuses his philanthropic efforts on making an impact and on the causes nearest to his heart. As Chairman of the Board, he is deeply invested in Good Samaritan’s continual growth and service to the community.

In 2017 the emergency department treated over 40,000 patients with close to 9,000 patients admitted to the hospital for further diagnosis, care and treatment. With this major renovation to the hospital’s emergency services, Good Sam will be positioned to better meet the needs of our patients by providing the best in lifesaving and emergency care.

Mr. Munger’s generous gift showcases his personal commitment to ensuring Good Samaritan Hospital maintains its preeminence and continues to expand its service to the community.

The Good Samaritan Hospital family is sincerely grateful to Mr. Munger for his years of service and dedication to Good Sam, and his most generous gift to the hospital which will benefit all in the community.

The core of Good Samaritan Hospital—tied even to its name—is the idea that everyone has the power to make a difference.

Longtime hospital employees Rose Wong and Kathy Yoshimura are examples of this power.

For years, Wong and Yoshimura have contributed to “Good Company,” Good Samaritan Hospital’s employee giving group. To recognize their dedication and consistent support of the hospital, President and CEO Andrew B. Leeka recently presented them with the Chairman’s Award at the Good Company Employee awards reception held on February 15, 2018 at the Moseley-Salvatori Conference Center.

In addition to Wong and Yoshimura, over 100 employees were in attendance at the awards reception, and were recognized for making significant and consistent gifts through Good Company.

“I was motivated to give back through Good Company after years of observing the care provided to patients and their families by Good Sam’s medical and professional staff,” said Wong.

Wong has been with Good Samaritan Hospital for 26 years. She currently serves as administrative assistant to Lexie Schuster, vice president of human resources.

She has designated her gifts to the cancer, heart, and Althea Sperry Education funds, as well as to the hospital’s most critical needs.

“There is no greater feeling than to give back to the place that has been so good to you,” said Yoshimura.

Yoshimura, laboratory director, has been with the hospital for nearly 44 years. Working in the lab daily, Yoshimura has witnessed the impact high-end equipment can have on generating precise and timely data for doctors’ use in diagnosing and treating patients. This is why she consistently earmarks her Good Company contributions to the Laboratory Pathology fund.

“I think it’s important to give back to something that you’re passionate about, and you can’t help but be passionate here—by taking care of patients we’re doing something that is important and can’t be done by everybody.”

Good Samaritan Hospital’s 14th Golf Classic was held on April 30, 2018 at the beautiful Wilshire Country Club in Los Angeles. We wish to express our sincere appreciation to all of our generous sponsors who partnered with us to make the Classic the most successful outing to date.

This year, the proceeds of the event will support Good Samaritan’s newly launched Palliative Care Program. The Palliative Care program provides critical comfort to patients experiencing long-term or chronic illness as well as support for those patients’ families. This program is primarily funded by a generous grant from Unihealth and relies on additional philanthropy such as this to continue.
Good Samaritan Hospital’s Major Donor Dinner was held last October at The California Club in downtown Los Angeles to honor our benefactors who make substantial contributions to Good Sam. Chairman, Charles T. Munger and the Board of Trustees hosted the evening to thank our major donors for their continued generosity to the hospital.

Andrew B. Leeka, President/CEO and Margaret Bates, M.D., Chief of Staff, also both personally recognized our major donors for the impact they have made in the lives of patients and families who come to Good Sam for lifesaving care. Thanks to the ongoing commitment made by individual donors, corporate and foundation partners, and community organizations, close to $7M was raised for important and vital services of the hospital—with $2M directly supporting patient care for the underserved.
With Sincere Gratitude

As the downtown Los Angeles community grows, Good Sam is extremely grateful to our donors who help us stay at the forefront in providing exceptional health care to all. We would like to extend our sincere gratitude as well to Susan M. Blumenthal and Maribeth A. Borthwick, Board of Trustees, for organizing such a wonderful evening for all our benefactors.

Major donors are a special donor group of Good Samaritan Hospital. Donors who make an annual gift to the hospital of $5,000 or more or include Good Sam in their will are part of this special group and are invited to the Major Donor Dinner.
